He is the author of two memoirs, but Wilbert L. Walker, Morgan State University Class of 1950, has contributed time, talent and treasure to his alma mater that could easily fill a third. For this reason, the MSU National Alumni Association was proud to announce his selection as its 2007 Alumnus of the Year.

A frequent contributor to Morgan State University, he established the Louis H. Walker Endowed Memorial Band Scholarship, in honor of his late brother. He also established the Grace and Wilbert Walker Endowed Social Work Scholarship. His contribution of $50,000 was matched by the State of Maryland, creating two Endowed Scholarships valued at $100,000 towards the renovation of the Alumni House on the University’s campus. In recognition of his generous gift to Morgan State University, the Alumni House’s entrance foyer was named for him and his late wife, Grace Walker.

Mr. Walker has led a remarkable life of achievement. Born in Durham, N.C., in 1922, he attended public schools in Baltimore, where his family moved in 1929. After graduating from high school, he was drafted into the Navy, served in WWII, returned to Baltimore two years later and joined the ROTC program at Morgan State. He left with a bachelor’s degree with honors in economics as the University’s first distinguished military graduate and returned to active duty with the U.S. Army during the Korean War. Thrice-decorated for his service in Korea, he later was inducted into Morgan State’s ROTC Hall of Fame.

About his contributions to MSU, Mr. Walker says, “Morgan does a good job educating young people, and it has a significant need for money to do so… I can’t think of a better use for the money.”

Alumni Day Business Meeting Cancelled

Dr. Richardson’s State of the University address was one of the main highlights of past Alumni Day Business Meetings. Beginning in 2005, because of the wealth of information that he shares, he’s delivered his address during the Alumni Awards and Class Reunion Luncheon instead. For this reason, we have decided to cancel our Alumni Day Business Meeting. However, please join us for the Alumni Book Signing, Hospitality Reception and the Luncheon. We look forward to your participation!
President’s Message

Greetings, Alumni and Friends:

With spring comes inspiration for the young and young at heart. And nowhere is this more true than on the campus of Morgan State University, This year, as last, there is much for Morgan students to be encouraged about, as they look forward to a strong finish of their academic year or, for seniors, Commencement and the beginning of their journey in the world of their specialty and beyond. There is the sight of new buildings under construction, new programs in the student handbook and new organizations committed to partnering with the University. Most important, there is the knowledge our students have that they are not struggling alone, that they have the solid support of the Morgan State alumni who struggled before them and have made it.

For those of us on the "other side," Morgan State alumni, today’s students are inspiration themselves. This issue of the Alumni News, with its stories of professional success and generosity to alma mater, is dedicated to those elders who know giving back is what keeps us young!

Sincerely,

Ella Moultrie Harris, ’57, President, MSU National Alumni Association

ROTC Alumni Association Named 2007 Chapter of the Year

The Morgan State University ROTC Alumni Association has brought honor and positive visibility to MSU on the national and world stages since 1996. Now the chapter that came from that association stands in the spotlight of honor itself, as the MSU National Alumni Association’s selection as 2007 Chapter of the Year.

This year’s honoree was chartered as the MSU ROTC Alumni Chapter in October 2004. The chapter consists primarily of former Morgan State University and Coppin State University (MSU/CSU) students who received their military commissions through the U.S. Army ROTC Program and are now retired military officers or are serving on active duty. Chapter members include veterans of World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War, as well as servicemen and servicewomen now participating in this country’s latest conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq. Through the MSU/CSU ROTC Program, Morgan State has produced more African-American general officers in the U.S. Army than any other historically black college or university, and now has as an alumnus who is the highest-ranking African-American general officer serving on active duty in the Army: Gen. William "Kip" Ward, a chapter member.

The MSU ROTC Alumni Chapter has given significant support to Morgan State University, Coppin State University, the African-American community and the nation. Its positive activities have influenced numerous young men and women to become students at Morgan State and productive members of our society. Over the past seven years, the chapter has raised more than $23,000 to support its programs. Chapter members have pledged or contributed more than $77,000 to the MSU Capital Campaign. The chapter’s ROTC Summer Camp initiative provides funds to support training, while the ROTC Emergency Fund it established helps students with financial difficulties to stay in school. Being selected as 2007 Chapter of the Year is an honor it richly deserves.

Special Achievement Award-Winner

Kenneth Don Mosely, P.E.D., Class of ‘71

After his many years as a leader in academia and the broader community, people have become used to thinking of Dr. Kenneth Mosely as a success story. But there was a time when his plotline was not so clear.

“I had a decent GPA when I graduated from high school, but I didn’t have the test scores I needed for Morgan,” he recalls. “I wound up having to take remedial math, remedial reading and remedial English. These were new programs that (MSU) President (Martin D.) Jenkins had started. I had to take these classes five days a week. I was a little embarrassed by that, but they allowed me to catch up. When I did go on to the ROTC program, my writing and speaking skills had really improved.”

After catching up, young Mosely moved to the front. He cocaptained Morgan State’s CIAA championship swim teams in 1969 and 1970. At graduation in 1971, he received his B.S. in physical education and was recognized as a distinguished military student. He began his career as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army, which gave him additional leadership, organizational and human relations skills. From there, he went on to Kansas State University, where he earned an M.S. in physical education, and to Indiana University, where he became the first African American to earn a doctorate in physical education with an emphasis in adapted physical education.

P.E.D. in hand, Dr. Mosely began work at South Carolina State University in 1976. He retired in 2005 as a full professor and chair of the Department of Health and Physical Education. During his tenure at SCSU, Dr. Mosely served 11 years as project director of the National Youth Sports Program and the USDA Summer Feeding Program and worked with many other community service organizations as a volunteer. He has authored more than 20 articles, presented more than 20 professional papers and written proposals for 13 funded grants totaling more than $850,000.

“I am extremely honored to have received this (Special Achievement) award,” says Dr. Mosely, now a charter member of the South Atlantic Region MSU Alumni chapter, and actively involved with the Chapter’s fundraising activities, a member of the Varsity M Club and a life member of the MSU National Alumni Association. “I attribute much of my success to what Morgan did for me between 1966 and 1970.”
